Ian Woollen was born and raised in Indianapolis, Indiana. Shipped off to boarding school at age fourteen, he eventually graduated from Yale University and Christian Theological Seminary. His first novel, Stakeout on Millennium Drive, won the 2006 Best Book of Indiana Fiction Award. His short fiction has surfaced in a variety of journals. His recent book, Uncle Anton's Atomic Bomb, tells a tale that encapsulates the Cold War era within the lives of three generations of a Hoosier family. He says, "It's a fictionalized family, but there are many aspects that reflect the dynamics of my family ..... The lives of the three brothers are ways my life could have gone."
