An admirer of T.C. Steele? Aware of his great presence on IU's Campus?

A few facts:

Theodore Clement Steele is perhaps the most famous of the "Hoosier Group" of American Impressionist painters. He was born in Gosport, Indiana in 1847 and began his painting at 5 years of age. By age 13 he was teaching other children how to draw.

By the 1890s, Steele had become a nationally recognized painter,

After his wife Mary's death in 1885, he decided to focus on painting landscapes.

Steele purchased 200 heavily wooded acres in Brown County, and settled into "The House of the Singing Winds" to paint the hilly landscapes of this rural area near Bloomington.

In 1916 Steele and his wife Selma built a studio which at the time was considered the largest in the state.

T.C. Steele died in July, 1926 at the age of 79.

The property was a gift of Selma Steele to the Department of Conservation in 1945, under the condition that the property be preserved as a memorial. In Mrs. Steele's own words, "I trust that the whole surrounding forest will be preserved...."
